12.2 - Draft Method

The last place team of the preceding season gets the first choice in every round of the draft; the next to last place team gets the second selection in every round; and the remaining teams select in the reverse order of standing. If teams have identical win loss records the team that gets the earlier pick will be determined by head-to-head competition. The second tiebreaker shall be a coin flip executed by the Player Agent. The winner of the coin flip will exercise the right to first pick in the first round and will alternate with the loser in succeeding rounds.

However, in the event a team(s) did not qualify for the playoffs in the preceding season based upon head-to-head competition pursuant to Article 15.01. That team(s) shall not be subject to the alternating rounds provision of this article when tied with team(s) that qualified for the playoffs. In the event two or more teams were eliminated based upon head-to-head competition pursuant to Article 15.01, such teams would be subject to alternating draft rounds but only with other such non-playoff teams.

EXAMPLES:

First Round

Last place Manager selects the first player; next to last place Manager selects the second player, etc.; the first place Manager selects the last player.

Second Round

Repeat the process used for the first round and continue for as many rounds as are needed to fill all rosters.

*Five teams finished with identical records. Two teams were eliminated by the head-to-head clause and three teams participated in the playoffs. The two non-playoff teams would be subject to the alternating rounds provision ONLY among those two non-playoff teams. The three playoff teams would be subject to alternating rounds provision among the three playoff teams.

12.3 - Draft of Previously Selected Players

1. The request must be in writing and signed by the player's parents with copies submitted to the League President, the Player Agent and the player's coach no later than try-outs of the current year.
2. It must be communicated in writing to the parents of the player involved, that the player, after playing one full season in the Minor League, can reenter the draft the following season. The team that released the player originally would have the first option of re-drafting the player as their first-round draft pick.
3. The team would have to declare the pick before the first player of the draft is chosen, otherwise, any other team would be eligible to draft the player

13.2 – Siblings

1. Siblings (brother or sister already on a team)
 - a. A second (or more) brother/sister is protected by the sibling rule regardless of any option indicated by the parent. This sibling should be “declared” before the draft begins and is automatically assigned the lowest available position on the roster. If he is not “declared” by the Manager holding that option, his/her status is then determined by the option indicated by the parent. A Manager may still pick the player in a later round providing no other team has selected him/her. If the parent will not allow siblings to play on different teams then the player is ineligible for draft by any other team and must play in the Minor League. If the parents permit the siblings to play on separate teams, the player is then eligible for the draft on any other team.
2. Siblings (two or more siblings at try-outs - no sibling on a team.)
 - a. If a parent indicates that the siblings cannot play on separate team:
 - b. When the first of siblings is drafted, the Manager must declare his intention regarding the remaining sibling(s) and automatically assign the sibling to the lowest available position on the roster. If the Manager indicates he does not wish to draft the remaining sibling(s) he (they) is (are) not eligible for selection by any other team and must play in the Minor League.
 - c. If the parent indicates that the siblings may play on separate teams: When the first sibling is selected, the Manager may indicate his intention to declare the remaining sibling(s) and automatically assign the sibling to the lowest available position on the roster, but he is not obligated to do so. The remaining sibling(s) is eligible for selection by any other team at any point in the draft if not declared by the Manager selecting the first sibling.
 - d. If controversy arises regarding Case 1 or 2 above, the parents of the siblings involved should be contacted by telephone immediately to determine their preference.

13.3 - New Managers Son/Daughter

If a new Manager has a son/daughter on an existing Major League roster, then he/she may exercise the option of transferring their son/daughter to their own team. In such cases, the new Manager's team will surrender a draft pick as compensation to the player's previous team. The selection round will be designated by a committee consisting of the Player Agent and two Major League Managers (appointed by the Player Agent), based on the ability of the son/daughter.

If two (2) teams tie for the sixth playoff spot, and head to head competition cannot determine the winner, there will be a one (1) game playoff between the two (2) teams.

If three (3) or more teams tie for the final playoff spot(s), and head to head competition does not settle the tie, the team(s) that allowed the fewest total runs scored in the regular season is awarded the seed(s) for the tournament (like the World Series Tiebreaker rule).
